From the Director

As I write this I am thinking back on past New Year greetings from me, your local Library Director, to you, the community I love. Over the past 18 years, I have had the pleasure of planning library services and programs based on how we all access books, movies, information, and more. It's a challenge I have been devoted to and continually embrace.

Libraries have evolved significantly since the ink on my master's degree was wet! That was way back in the 1980's before the internet, CDs, DVDs... well, you get the idea. The library of today is a place where people come to create and share content. Where we meet to discuss, exercise our bodies and minds, paint, enjoy music, or relax alone or with friends. The library of today is about so much more than you might realize or even imagine.

Over the past year the webpage was completely renovated. It is user friendly, and is packed with resources. Check it out and let me know what you think. In addition to the library's online presence, the building on Main Road is in need of enhancement to meet our changing needs as a community library. The Board and I are planning a comprehensive renovation of the building, and the services offered throughout. I am hoping to begin a community conversation in the new year about all the exciting changes that are in store.

Please go to southoldlibrary.org, or our facebook page to access all the exciting programs, services and resources to get more from your library.

Happy and healthy New Year greetings to you all!
